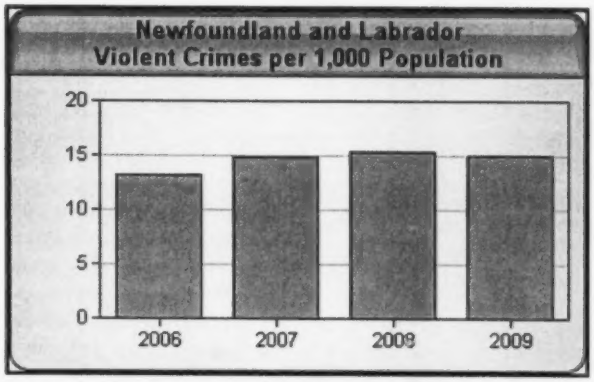
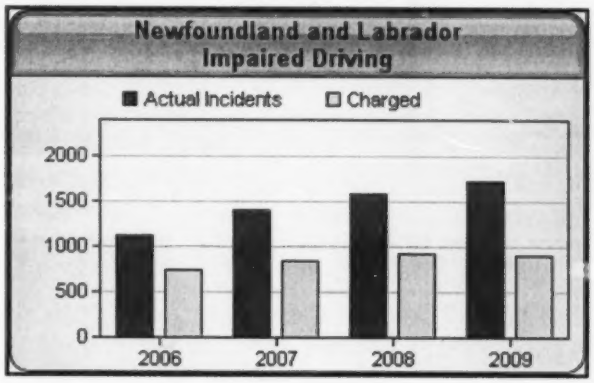
Canadian Centre for Justice Statistics

Total violent criminal code violations rate per 1,000 population was 14.98 for Newfoundland and Labrador[c] in 2009. This was down -2.1% from 2008 (15.30 per 1,000).

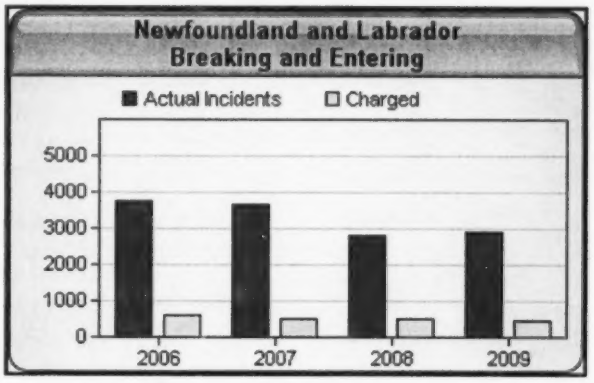


Violent criminal code violations are counted in terms of the number of victims in the incident. The number of incidents equals the number of victims of violent crimes. The exception to this is the crime of robbery which is included in the group of violent offences for analysis purposes but is counted as a non-violent offence in that one incident of robbery equals one offence regardless of the number of victims.

In 2009 there were 895 persons charged with impaired driving in Newfoundland and Labrador[c]. This was less than the number charged in 2008, which was 920.



In 2009 there were 435 persons charged with breaking and entering in Newfoundland and Labrador[d]. This was less than the number charged in 2008, which was 490.



Data on incidents that come to the attention of police are captured and forwarded to the CCJS according to a nationally approved set of common scoring rules and definitions. The reader should note however, that many factors could influence official crime statistics. These include: reporting by the public to the police; reporting by police to the CCJS; and the impact of new intiatives such as changes in legislation, policies or enforcement polices.
